Clermont residents protest rate hike

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Lynn Havens, southern district commissioner of the State Public Service Commission, addressed a packed St. Ann's Parish Hall of concerned Clermont Harbor residents Saturday.

LYNN HAVENS
Southern District
State Public Service Commissioner

The residents appeared because of a threat of increased utility rates requested by Johnson Utility Company, the new owner of the Clermont Harbor water system. Johnson Utility purchased the utility company serving 395 residential and five commercial water users from Clermont Harbor Waterworks System's owner Richard Planchard, according to Havens.

Planchard made a SBA loan for repairs after Hurricane Camille. The installation of a chlorinator on the system was objected to by several persons, but Havens indicated that is out of his territory saying it was a State Board of Health requirement. Spectators first questioned Havens about the increased rates, poor water pressure and poor service over the past years. Havens said he will not approve the installation of water meters on the small system.

Havens emphasized that the new owner of the utility system would have to increase water pressure to 40 pounds.

at the faucets head, and would have to have standby equipment available in case power is disrupted because of a storm. One thing the Clermont Harbor experience has brought to focus is a new rule. According to Havens, all customers have to be notified in writing of the date of a public hearing to be held by a utility company before they appear before the commission with a rate increase request. When inquired about the street records of Johnson Utility, Havens stated they are above average. They have the people and equipment to do the work. Johnson would have 60 days to get the system in proper order, Havens indicated.

The commission stated the records kept by Planchard are non-existent and engineers found about 40 leaks in the system which had to be fixed in order to reach the 40 pound pressure. The new owners will have to have a locally located maintenance man on call 24 hours a day and definitely no recorder to answer the phone, Havens emphasized.

UTILITY INCREASES OBJECTED—Residents of Clermont Harbor, the utility company which serves 395 customers, has applied before Havens' commission for rate increases above 300 percent of those currently paid by the residents. The commission is to act this week on Johnson's request for a rate increase, but will not receive the amount requested according to Havens. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

$260,000 grant ok'd for Beach Boulevard

By BRENT MACEY
A $260,000 federal grant to repair Beach Boulevard in Hancock County was approved by the U.S. Department of Commerce Tuesday, according to U.S. Rep. Hiram E. Felt.

The Coastal Energy Impact Program money will be sent to the Bureau of Marine Resources in Long Beach which in turn will allocate the money to Hancock County after the county signs a contract with the bureau. Gordon Larson, CEIP director for the bureau, Friday said his department has not received the grant award yet, although his department has been notified the grant is approved. He said he was 100 percent sure the money will be allocated. Larson said the official grant is expected within two weeks. As soon as the grant award gets here then technically Hancock County can begin incurring costs for construction, he said. However, Larson said he would prefer the county sign a contract with the bureau before any work begins. District Four Supervisor Sam Pernickaro Friday said the next step will be to notify the county engineer, Bay St. Louis and Waveland officials to decide which areas are most critical and need repairing. Pernickaro said he thought the county and cities might work together to prepare the road surface. "If we can tear out the road and have it repaved, it would save money," Pernickaro said. "I hope we will be able to do the entire road," Pernickaro said. "I think I can do my section," he said about the section of Beach Road in his Beat which extends from Washington Avenue in Bay St. Louis to Nicholson Avenue in Waveland. Pernickaro also said he hopes the northern shoulder of the road could be paved to provide space for parking. "If we do the whole road then nobody can complain there is parking only in front of their house."

Supervisors to consider industry inducement plan

By WAYNE DUCOMBE JR.
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors Monday will be asked to apply for a state program designed to channel industrial prospects here.

W. Wilson Webb, County Port and Fugitive captured in Topeka

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Topeka, Kan. police have arrested Daniel David (Nash) Harrison, 34, who was indicted by the July Hancock County Grand Jury on two counts of grand larceny for burglary, according to Sheriff Ronald Peterson. Peterson said, "We had received information that Harrison was in Topeka, and we received information that he was staying at a hotel. We were waiting for extradition papers to return him."

Harbor Commission director will present a resolution to the supervisors Thursday night by the commission, requesting county participation in the Key Community Program sponsored by the State Department of Economic Development and the Hancock Chamber of Commerce.

Commissioner Victor Frankiewicz proposed the program at the Thursday night meeting and explained the state will retain industrial prospects first to counties participating in the program. He also noted only a select number of counties are eligible for the program because it requires a certain amount of acreage available in an area's public-owned industrial parks. The commissioners approved another Frankiewicz recommendation requesting the State Bureau of Marine Resources secure matching funds for a Port Blanche Industrial Park master plan and drainage study. Frankiewicz is a BMR consultant.

county's share amounting to about $17,500. In reference to the Port Blanche (short line) Railroad, the commission authorized a $900-per-day lease agreement with Louisville and Nashville Railroad to utilize its track X-ray unit.

Frankiewicz requested a final X-ray report be provided to the county. Regarding a contract with Bay Aviation, Inc., Stennis International Airport's fixed base operator, that company's manager Andy Swing discussed possibly amending the company's contract to reduce or eliminate the county's profit share. Bay Aviation is planning to bear the costs of building another hangar building south of the present structure. The county is planning to build a taxiway and turning apron from the existing hangar area to the proposed facility. Hancock County fill was also to be provided by the county, but Webb revealed the State Department of Commerce Economic Development Administration funds which are being utilized for the taxiway and apron can not be used to provide the foundation materials.

Swimmer critical after mishap

Norman Ladner, 17, of 300 Sidney St. in Waveland was listed in critical condition in a Biloxi hospital Thursday, paralyzed from the shoulders down and receiving complete respiratory aid, according to Jeff Toth, registered nurse at Gulf Coast Community Hospital. Toth said Ladner was alert and responsive. Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said Ladner was injured Wednesday at approximately 8:40 p.m. after diving from a bridge or embankment into Bayou LaChaux on Hwy. 603 in Hancock County. Peterson said he is still uncertain as to the exact circumstances surrounding the accident although he thinks two other youths were with Ladner at that time. Mobile Medic responded to the scene and brought Ladner to Hancock General Hospital where he was later transferred to the Biloxi hospital. Peterson said an ordinance passed by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors two years ago forbids diving or jumping from the bridge and requires offenders pay a $100 fine. The sheriff said he approached the board and requested the ordinance be passed after noting possible dangers of people being struck by cars on the bridge or jumping on to boats passing under the bridge.

New law presents problem for future school budgets

By BRENT MACEY
Hancock County School Board Attorney Joseph Gex informed board members Saturday that a new law passed by the state legislature could greatly affect the amount of money the board expects to receive in 1982 school year. The law, according to Gex, allows parents to increase a maximum 10 percent of their child's education revenue received by the school district. The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is expected to approve a budget of $260,000 for the school year.

during its next meeting, Gex said. "As the law stands now that money will go against the budget and will be considered part of the increase," he said. "The law also states that the state will not base its funding on the amount of money the school district receives from the state. It will be based on the amount of money the school district receives from the state."

created by $10,000 for the next school year. If the $260,000 billage is figured into that increase then the school board will only be able to increase its budget by $20,000 for the 1982-83 year, he said. Gex said the legislature had the intention of a new law. He said they raised the amount of money in boards of education budgets if those budgets were increased to be based on increases in property value evaluation in 1982. Gex said he was advising the school board to withdraw its request for

State permits two new Hancock wells

By ELLIS CUEVAS
The Mississippi Department of Natural Resources has approved two new wells in Hancock County for water supply. The wells are located in the northern part of the county and will provide water for the local community. The approval was given after a thorough review of the proposed wells and their impact on the local environment.

Traffic Fatalities Increase during first half of 1981

Despite a decrease in the number of accidents involving fatalities during the first six months of 1981 compared to the same time period in 1980, more persons died in traffic mishaps on Mississippi roadways in 1981.

The Department of Public Safety reported that 22 percent fewer fatalities occurred on highways during the first six months of 1981 compared to the same time period in 1980.

Since January 1, 1981, 10 people have been killed on Mississippi highways, compared to 13 during the same time period last year. There have been 12 percent fewer accidents on county roads, but a 10 percent increase in deaths.

The most dangerous time for accidents was between 3 and 4 p.m. on Friday, the most fatal time for accidents was between 2 and 3 a.m. There were 130 one-car fatal accidents the first six months of this year, while 140 one-car fatal accidents took place during the same time frame last year. Twenty-three accidents occurred this year with more than one fatality, compared to 24 in 1980.

While the total number of miles driven on Mississippi highways and county roads and city streets increased by 17 percent, enforcement on state and federal highways rose 14 percent, the patrol said.

School buses roll again this week

The new school year gets underway in Hancock County Tuesday which means public school buses will traverse the county's roads, highways and city streets twice daily transporting nearly 4,000 students.

Figures show that the buses travel nearly a half-million miles each year.

Sheriff Ronald Peterson and Police Chiefs Douglas Williams and Donald Dorn remind motorists that when a school bus displays a stop signal for loading or unloading children, Mississippi law requires all motorists traveling in the same direction as well as those traveling in the opposite direction, to stop.

Mississippi's school buses have signal lights both front and rear to warn other drivers. Yellow flashing lights indicate slowing down and red flashing lights with the stop arm extended from the bus is the signal for other vehicles to stop while the children load or unload.

Highway Patrol Chief Donald Butler said that school buses are required to stop at railroad crossings and motorists should use caution when following a bus approaching crossings.

All public school bus drivers and substitute drivers have been professionally trained and are certified by the State Department of Education.

of William Carey College since 1957, was assistant and associate professor of English at USM 1952-54. The district governor met with the officers and directors of the Bay Rotary Club Tuesday night to discuss the local club's plans for the coming year. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

NEWS FROM THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

Speaking at the recent Neshoba County Fair Governor William Winter said that it is time for the state legislature to get out of the business of setting hunting seasons.

"I want to turn the responsibility for setting hunting season over to the experts in the Department of Wildlife Conservation," Winter said.

Winter urged legislators "to devote our time and our effort to the major issues of 'education,' 'economic development' and 'transportation.' We must do this if we are going to become competitive with our sister states and get out of our 50th place ranking in per capita income."

Winter renewed his call for a statewide system of public kindergartens and compulsory school attendance before fairgoers and received hearty applause.

Later in the week Winter announced that he will call a special session of the Mississippi Legislature to convene on August 25 to reappportion the state's congressional districts.

COOLING COSTS

Mississippians with medical and economic needs may begin applying for financial assistance to help meet their rising cooling costs through the Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP).

LIEAP, which is being administered by the Governor's Office of Energy Assistance, will provide one-time payments ranging from $50 to $200, to an estimated 17,000 eligible households. Eligibility will be based on medical and economic factors, with priority being given to elderly and handicapped persons. Payment amounts will depend on an applicant's income, region of state and degree of responsibility for the cooling payment.

Apartment renters, who are responsible for utilities, and residents of subsidized housing may also be eligible for assistance. For information on where to apply for LIEAP assistance, persons may contact the Governor's Service Line (toll free) at 1-800-222-8232 or (Jackson area) 361-4042.

Saying that the right bait is required to lure industries to Mississippi, Governor William Winter called education and transportation "key components of our efforts to expand job opportunities for our people."

"There is a lot of competition for industries today and if we are going to get our share, we must improve our educational system and provide an adequate transportation system," Winter said. "For this reason I have hammered away at these issues before the Legislature."

Winter noted that Mississippi is now viewed by most industrialists as an active place to locate and to expand industries. "But we still have areas where improvement is desperately needed," the governor said.

"Without exception industrialists ask me about our educational system and our capacity to provide the skilled and trained people that industry needs as well as our ability to provide high caliber schools for the children of industry employees."

"There is a perception that we still do not have as good a system of education as we are capable of having," Winter said.

"I am attempting to assure them that we are putting additional efforts into this process and that we are working to make Mississippi's educational system competitive with every other state."

"We have lost a number of industries because of concern about our system of education. We must work boldly and rapidly to improve our system of education so that we do not labor under handicap as we seek to bring high-paying jobs into Mississippi," he said.

Farm Bureau feels newspaper coverage contributes to Farm-City Tour success

Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

The Hancock County Farm Bureau board of directors feels your paper's contribution to our Farm-City Tour was truly July 23 and the excellent coverage that you gave us in your newspaper will go a long way in promoting this endeavor and that the day will be even greater next year.

We believe that this is an excellent way to bring better understanding and cooperation between our rural people and the people of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

It seemed that everyone enjoyed the trip and the day and we were happy to have a small part in it.

Sincerely,

Reader presents plan to coordinate county problem solving

August 13, 1961

Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

There are four problems plaguing

Hancock County for a long long time. They are:

1. Over crowding at the county jail.
2. Lack of funds.
3. Junk and trash cluttering the county in stray dumps.
4. The Hole.

Solution: Utilizing the manpower in the jail, on a work—early release offer, get the county to squeeze out a little gasoline money for their trucks, have the manpower go around collecting the junk including kitchen stoves.

Get the barge from the man in Slidell, station it over the hole. Fill it with the junk and Mr. Sam's rubber trees and anything that is broken, concrete, asphalt, ex-utility poles and heavy wood stumps.

Have the Highway Department make signs that say "No Holes" and put in the posts, that the Corps of Engineers say mark the spot so well.

Get extras, some going will steal them.

Any donations of shells or gravel should be put around the hole. In oyster season, the shuckers will be invited to dump raw shells around the hole, instead of in a vacant lot.

This should be done for about a year, so that when the oyster shells are planted to make an oyster reef, all will be ready for a "tongue" year.

Results: Reduction of cost of operating the jail by feeding inmates fewer days; cleaning up the rat infested illegal dumps; establishing a profitable oyster reef; and getting the county out from under the threat of more law suits.

Let's face it. None of these elected people care a hoot about Hancock County, except at election time. Don't waste postage.

Instead let's do it, to the point that Hancock County and the Corps of Engineers are in agreement and both can say there is no hole. It has been filled.

Yours very truly,
Virginia G. West

Waveland car-train crash victim mother mounts campaign for signals

Aug. 14, 1961

Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor:

Not long ago I read a letter in your newspaper about the need for better signals at train crossings.

I agreed with the letter then, but as countless others did nothing about it. Now I have a very special reason to do something about it.

On Friday, July 10, my 15-year-old daughter's car was hit by a train at the Waveland Avenue I-10 Railroad track intersection.

By the grace of God, she is alive and well.

Who is responsible? We are! You and I! By the mere fact that we are human beings we are dependent upon one another.

Our country has grown up with the attitude of reaching out to help others in need.

Maybe this attitude has blinded us to our own needs.

I'm sure you will agree that we need better signals at the crossings, but have we done anything except "talk"?

I'm asking for your assistance in this problem, and I pray you will respond favorably.

I invite you to join me, not against anyone, but for everyone.

I ask you to invite the people of Hancock County to join me in asking the railroad to join together for safety. I've can't attract a walk any longer. Who will be the next victim? Will they be as lucky as we have been?

Sincerely,

Jerilyn G. Burns

P.S. Please inform your neighbor in this regard. If you know anyone who lives near a railroad crossing, please let them know. We need to get the word out. We need to get the word out. We need to get the word out.

A big celebration is planned for Boy Scout Troop 208 of Bay St. Louis Friday night to mark the troop's 50th anniversary.

The Scout Troop has been sponsored for all those years by Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139.

All former leaders and members of the troop will be guests at a recognition dinner at the American Legion Home on Blue Meadow Road.

We hope to see many of the scouts of yesteryear in attendance. We know Buck Buehler, who has been involved with Troop 208 as a member and leader will be there in addition to a lot of other old-timers.

Bay St. Louis Postmaster Tom Hill called us Friday to say that the post office will again accept mail for Canada as the mail strike there has been settled.

We noted every visit to the post office that mail for Canada was not being accepted temporarily and wondered just how long temporarily was going to be.

We are sure glad a settlement was made with the American Postal workers, especially when we think of how many people depend on the service for monthly checks.

Redistricting seems to be in the news quite frequently. We note our Hancock County Board of Supervisors are going to look at three proposals from the Gulf Regional Planning Commission.

If anything seems to get people upset, all one has to say is "redistrict."

With changing populations, it is necessary to redistrict sometimes more often than others. We know it was done only ten years ago in Hancock County.

We hope everyone will accept the decisions made by the supervisors, even though those decisions will not meet everyone's approval.

Inflation seems to be popping up everywhere today. Parents will note the increases in school lunches when the bells begin to ring next week.

Just like everything else, the cost of food purchased by the school systems has continued to rise.

Dick Kosbah is dishing out cigars like they are going out of style since wife Wendy gave birth to their fourth child this week.

We know Dick is pushing for community growth as president of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and is really doing something with his wife's help in increasing the population.

Congratulations are in order for Dick and Wendy.

We have noted many families of parents these days. Children are because school is closing.

We have even talked to some parents who are happy to see their children after three months of no school.

P.S. Please inform your neighbor in this regard. If you know anyone who lives near a railroad crossing, please let them know. We need to get the word out. We need to get the word out. We need to get the word out.

Vets eligible for burial in 58 national cemeteries

Veterans should remind their families that burial in a national cemetery is open to any veteran who has been discharged under other than dishonorable conditions.

Mike Ladhier, Hancock veterans service officer, said although the law doesn't provide for grave site reservations, a veteran can make things easier for his survivors by expressing a desire to be buried in a national cemetery, keeping military service records accessible and verifying eligibility at any VA office.

To be eligible for burial, military service must have been for other than training purposes. Reserve or national guard personnel who do not meet those requirements, but who die as a result of their active duty or training, may also be eligible.

Service members who die on active duty are also eligible. Burial is available to an eligible veteran's widow, widower, minor children, and, under special circumstances, unmarried adult children. When a veteran or dependent dies, the documents verifying eligibility should be presented to the funeral director handling the burial. The funeral director then contacts the national cemetery director to determine eligibility and space availability.

Of the 108 national cemeteries, 58 have grave space available, 47 are closed and three are under construction or design. A closed cemetery means it is not available for initial interments.

Those who have a spouse or dependent buried in a closed cemetery may still be buried in that family grave site. Once eligibility and space are determined, the VA will open the grave, handle the burial, furnish a headstone or marker and provide perpetual care and maintenance.

National cemeteries listed as full and closed may have sites available in the future through expansion, removal of obstructions or the cancellation of a reserved space. Reservations were permitted until 1962.

Questions regarding burial in a national cemetery or other VA burial benefits can be answered through Ladhier's office in the Hancock County Youth Court Building on Court Street, Bay St. Louis, behind the Courthouse, or by calling 467-2100.

Power company seeking help in locating former customers

If someone you know was served by Mississippi Power Company between June 1975 through December 1980 and has moved from the service area in southeast Mississippi, you may help them receive a refund check simply by telling them to contact the Power Company.

Mississippi Power is currently gathering information to verify customer service records and current mailing addresses in preparation for distributing $34 million to recent and former retail customers.

The refund results from settlement in February of a breach of contract suit against Peabody Coal Company.

Customers who received service during the entire six-year period are eligible to receive a refund check, which may equal an average month's electric bill. Mississippi Power Company expects to begin mailing refund checks in early December.

Precautions necessary to prevent home food poisoning

Most of us think of food poisoning as something that happens in a restaurant or at a picnic. But it can happen in your own kitchen. Most cases of food poisoning are caused by bacteria that are in the air we breathe and on our hands and everything we touch, says Barbara Matz, a nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service food and nutrition specialists.

"Each year more than two million cases of bacterial food poisoning occur in the United States, despite our advanced food processing technology. Prevention is a matter of stopping the growth of these bacteria and killing them at the proper time to prevent their growth and possible poisoning of food."

This means people must process, cook or prepare food by methods that will prevent food poisoning. Three basic rules can help prevent food poisoning:

- Keep food hot.
- Keep food cold.
- Keep food clean.

Keeping food hot means cooking food thoroughly, holding it at a hot temperature during serving and fully reheating stored foods. Keeping food cold means refrigerating perishables or leftovers promptly.

Keeping food clean means avoiding unsanitary practices that contaminate food. It's the consumer's responsibility to keep food safe after purchase, she says. Many people know little about food safety. Too often people let food go bad, and never realize what comes in contact with it. It's almost impossible to detect food poisoning bacteria on their own, except through laboratory analysis. These bacteria don't change the taste, smell or look of the food.

Mrs. Matz lists some specific ways to help prevent food poisoning in your kitchen:

- 1) Keep frozen food wrapped and thaw it either in the refrigerator or under cold water. Wash everything that comes in contact with uncooked raw food. This includes your hands.

2) Keep your refrigerator at 35 to 40 degrees with a freezer temperature of zero or below. Germs on food multiply fast at these temperatures.

3) Freeze meat and poultry leftovers in covered containers. Keep in mind that once you open them, wrap them well and use within three to five days. Store frankfurters in their original packages and use them no later than one week after the "sell by" date printed on their package.

Don't buy or use food from leaking, bulging or dented cans or containers. Don't taste or use food that has a foul odor or any food that spurts liquid when the container is opened.

"It's nearly impossible to list all the potentially dangerous situations," she says, "but you can practice proper food safety daily with food safety, contact your local Extension Service Office."

YOU AND YOUR PET

By ROBERT L. STEAR, D.V.M.
A young, frisky dog that usually plays outdoors all day becomes dull and listless, and develops diarrhea and vomiting the next day.

The frantic owners visit their veterinarian, who eliminates any possibility of food poisoning or distemper. He tells them about a new disease called parvovirus infection.

This was a typical scene across the country last year as an unknown canine virus swept the country, causing sickness and death among puppies and young dogs.

It was a desperate situation; the disease was so new that little information was available, and only meager supplies of possibly effective vaccines.

Since then, researchers have thoroughly investigated the cause of the epidemic and have prepared effective vaccines against the new virus.

The new disease was caused by an organism known as a "parvovirus." It spreads when a susceptible pet contacts the virus in the stool of an infected animal, on contaminated feed or water bowls, or in kennels that house sick animals.

Last year, most dogs were susceptible to parvo infection, but not all became ill. Pets that were stressed by parasites, poor nutrition, or those that were very young or very old sickened much more quickly than pets in good condition.

Dogs that were boarded or attended large dog shows were also at risk.

Veterinarians know now that the virus destroys the cells that line the pet's intestinal tract, causing diarrhea and reducing the animal's ability to absorb nutrients.

The virus also attacks heart cells in very young puppies, so that the animals died with little warning.

Research has resulted in vaccines that are much more effective than those available last year.

Formerly, veterinarians were forced to try for short-term protection by using vaccines that were originally developed for use against certain diseases.

Now, new and more effective vaccines have been developed specifically for use against parvovirus. The new vaccines are more effective, faster acting, and longer lasting.

Domestic dogs and cats are the most common victims of the parvovirus infection.

Board of Health urges care in seafood purchase

Summertime suppers in the South traditionally feature such seafood delicacies as oysters on the half-shell, crab cakes, shrimp, and fish. But public health officials know that seafood must be carefully and safely handled from the water to the table. Consumers need to know that the seafood they buy is a highly perishable product that can be easily contaminated.

The Mississippi State Board of Health cooperates with the Department of Wildlife Conservation Bureau of Marine Resources and the Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Pollution Control to regulate the seafood industry.

Regulations are designed to protect "seafarming" operations for the industry and to guarantee safe shellfish and other seafood for consumers.

Agencies approve certain coastal waters as "growing waters" and routinely monitor the areas year-round for pollution.

Sanitarians check harvesting, handling, packing, shipping, and marketing of the seafood to insure a wholesome product and protect the public health.

Oyster, crab, and shrimp regulations vary in specifics, but every type seafood must meet state and federal guidelines before reaching the consumer. Requirements cover cleanliness, care, and cooling.

Shrimp reaches the consumer in fresh, frozen, and canned forms. Highly perishable, the crustacean must be refrigerated even while still on the shrimp boats and remain refrigerated until cooked.

In temperatures above 40 degrees Fahrenheit, the shrimp takes on a pink color and strong odor, another indication that the shrimp is not fresh or is loosely attached to fallen-off heads.

Public health officials recommend that consumers who buy fresh shrimp with heads on de-head them immediately, since most potential contamination occurs in the head portion.

Oyster safety precautions are taken in the "growing waters" and in shucking operations. Only oysters grown in approved waters harvested according to strict procedures and tested properly can legally be sold in Mississippi.

State Board of Health sanitarians check the U.S. Food and Drug Administration monthly

iterate certified shellfish shippers list to verify that a particular shipper has met permit requirements to sell seafood to restaurants and grocery stores. Crab meat must also bear a label with the producer's permit number. Among the more expensive seafoods, crab meat usually sells in one-pound tins or in plastic sealed containers. Mississippi has many facilities that offer quality seafood," emphasized J. O. May, sanitation division director for the State Board of Health. The most Mississippians to be aware of the "perishable" nature of seafood should buy only from reputable dealers, and food service establishments. Sanitarians at local health departments statewide monitor seafood products sold, but they need industry and consumer cooperation to insure a continued healthy food source.

An Important Message To Present And Former Customers Of Mississippi Power Company

YOU MAY BE ELIGIBLE FOR A REFUND CHECK IN DECEMBER

In mid-1975, Mississippi Power Company filed suit against Peabody Coal Company for failure to deliver coal contracted for shipment to its generating plant in Harrison County. The company initiated this legal action to protect its customers from unnecessary fuel cost increases. Between June 1975 and December 1980, customers paid higher fuel costs through the fuel adjustment because Mississippi Power Company had to buy coal at higher prices than those provided for under a long-term contract with Peabody Coal Company. Mississippi Power Company and its coal supplier settled the dispute earlier this year. As a result of Mississippi Power Company's efforts, approximately $34 million will be returned to retail customers by check in a special mailing in December 1981.

Customers who received electricity from Mississippi Power Company between June 1975 and December 1980 are eligible for a refund based on kilowatt-hour usage during that five-and-one-half-year period.

Please don't confuse Mississippi Power Company with Mississippi Power & Light Company. The names are similar, but they are two different utilities. Mississippi Power Company, headquartered in Gulfport, serves customers in 23 southeast Mississippi counties.

No Action Is Required—You Automatically Will Receive A Refund Check—If All 3 Conditions Apply:

1. You received an electric bill for the month of December 1980, AND
2. You received service between June 1975—December 1980 and did not move during that period, AND
3. You have not moved since December 1980.

Return This Form If Either Of These Conditions Apply To You:

1. You moved anytime between June 1975—December 1980.
2. You have moved since December 1980.

This information will be used to verify service records and to obtain current mailing addresses of customers who have moved. If you can include a copy of a bill received at a previous address, it would be helpful.

THIS INFORMATION MUST BE RECEIVED BY MISSISSIPPI POWER COMPANY BY SEPTEMBER 30, 1981. PLEASE REPLY ONLY ONCE.

HEMINGWAY DRAPES—Mrs. Favre, 70, is a member of Hancock General Hospital, where a set of drapes for one of the hospital rooms, being redecorated under a beautification program by staff and friends. Several rooms have been redecorated with drapes, wallpaper and painting. Supplies for each private room cost $350 and $475 for semi-private rooms and are being donated by organizations, individuals and through hospital staff fund-raising events. Persons interested can call Mrs. Favre or Jeannie Moran at 487-9081, as several private and semi-private rooms are still in need of supplies. A small plaque will be placed on each room indicating the donor. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

fund drive underway

The Old Ladies Home located in Jackson is conducting its annual fund drive this month.

The continued maintenance of the Home depends upon the generosity of the citizens of Mississippi, according to a home spokesman.

Established in 1902 and operated by a board of managers contributing their time, this home serves elderly ladies who have no family able to care for them or who do not have sufficient means of support.

Throughout the year, many Mississippi ladies, over 65 years of age, have entered the home to live their declining years in comfort.

Contributions may be sent to the Old Ladies Home, 2802 West Capital Street, Jackson, Mississippi 39209.

Our Laws:

What's good about them? What's bad about them?

By JOE PILET

Does our "hind-sight" improve with age?

Possibly so. Lately there have been among our citizens recurring expressions of opinions crying out against the erection of any structure on the beach side of Beach Boulevard.

Hurricane Camille was not "all bad." She did provide us with a "no-fault" clause wherein we might pass an ordinance forbidding the erection of any structure that would obstruct the view of the Bay of St. Louis.

The mayor of Bay St. Louis at that time repeatedly expressed his opinion and urged citizens to act promptly.

His warning and the cautions of the Bay-Beautiful Committee went unheeded.

At this point in the Business Section of our little town the number of beach-side establishments are growing.

As the devastation of the hurricane fades from memory more and more venturesome and courageous souls find the "beach-side" attractive for building or fencing.

The opportunity for developing Bay St. Louis into a unique, picturesque and altogether charming city seems to be slipping away, bit by bit.

Now there is apprehension. Aesthetics flinch. Those who once said, "The Beach belongs to everyone." The Best Things in Life are Free! now wonder if their thinking will have to be altered.

Can your mind conceive a long stretch of our coast lined with buildings and fences forbidding a view or entrance to the beaches and waters of the Bay as it is in many places in California where the view along many an ocean mile is no more than board fences? Not a pretty picture. Definitely not a tourist attraction or a reason for wishing to buy or build a residence in such a forbidding atmosphere. It could happen.

A precedent has been set! What should we do? Perhaps we might weep. That would relieve the tension. Perhaps we might berate those who have offended. That would not remove things objectionable.

Perhaps we might consult with city planners, lawyers, or any persons capable of making investigations into hidden, but existing ordinances.

Possibly we might peacefully voice our preferences in the full faith that we have the right to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness.

If our laws are good—let's obey them. If our laws are obsolete, or not to the best interest of the majority of our citizens let's take firm steps toward change.

The tricycle—

a space-time machine

Consider the tricycle—a marvelous machine that teaches concepts of time and space. A child should be ready for a first tricycle—and the lessons it teaches—at about the end of the second year.

Growing Child, a monthly child development newsletter, reports that learning to ride a tricycle helps children get their eyes matched up with what their bodies are doing.

The first thing they learn is to sit first with one foot and then with the other—to shift from left to right. Doing this, they learn about having two different sides.

In order to organize directions in space outside the body, the child must first feel the difference between left and right, up and down, within the body. Once they feel those differences inside themselves they have a starting point for organizing the space outside.

Pushing the pedals first with the right foot and then with the left helps a child learn that right and left, inside and outside, are different.

A tricycle also teaches about time. To make any progress at all, the child must shift from side to side, from left to right, at the proper time. They cannot shift at any old time; they must be precise.

Time is very important in school learning. To spell correctly, for example, a child must learn to get the letters in the proper time order. A child who has not learned about time might spell "girl" as "gril" or "fril" as "frist." These errors are examples of general problems in organizing time. Riding a tricycle smoothly, efficiently, and rhythmically helps the child organize movements in time.

Choose a tricycle with a squat look, that is, a wide wheel base in proportion to the height. A wider wheel base will make tipping over on tight turns less likely.

As for how to teach children to ride, probably the best method is just to put them on it; put their feet on the pedals, and let them go. If the child does not get the idea immediately, just give a gentle push, making sure they can feel their feet moving with the pedals as they go around.

More information on this subject, and on the physical and social development of children up to six years old is available from Growing Child, 22 North Second Street, P. O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.
